Dear friends, spirits,
shadows of the past.

I am home again
to visit and camp up here not expecting the book to be here as it is past the equinox.
I am glad though that it is as this is a time when many people need the magic of this forest to remind them of the summer light. Today, like every other day in the forest, is perfect for reflecting. When I am here I am reminded of who I am and why I am dedicating my life to conservation.

I brought a friend and he is just as taken with this place and its history as I was when I first found it.

I have been thinking loftily about the falling of the lovely oak. I do not think it is gone,
it has only changed.
Every new seedling or fern we see next year in the spring is the lovely oak.

We will see you
in the spring lovely oak, your power will never truly fade.

Kind the keys
leave no trace open the door

Friends

It is awful that so many books have been taken from here but on a more positive note: this new journal is downright groovy! Excellent choice DG Keeper 10/10. The new signs on the trees are very nice too thank you for all the hard work you do. I wish I could come here more often but it seems this place is in good hands. Maybe if the people who insist on removing the journal were shown how magical this place really was they would begin to understand. Never give up on magic, till next time.

Yesterday I saw by the evening light four legs on four wheels with four legs following always within sight.

And as the day was ending the four legs following greeted me while the four on four did not

I did not ask them to stay they did not ask me to go Then all eight legs were gone

Oh what things I could have told them of this place upon a hill, of things that have happened and other things that will

But they didn't ask one question so I chose to let them be I turned and walked away and let out a little sigh.

Friends, keepers, seekers of magic,

Happy Earth day!
Take a minute to breathe in the forest, I've always loved the way this place smelled.

The tannins from the conifers and the minerals from the blue stone mix and create a special odor in the soil that I can't quite describe.

There is a sapsucker feeding on the hemlock and a Red Squirrel waiting to feed on the sapsucker eggs, it is likely that there is a Hawk looking for the Red Squirrel. I love this time of year, waiting for the arrival of our seasonal residents gives the spring air a hue of anxious excitement.

My most beloved of the forest dwellers - The Hermit Thrush - has finally arrived here in the foothills, I have yet to hear it where it lives in the Mountains.

While you are out here
be sure to stay observant and live in the moment or you are sure to miss the more magical parts of the forest.

Again, happy Earth Day,
Your devoted friend of all forests,

I came here for the first time in 6 years because I was born in norwich and spent 4 Years traveling the Country (48 states and counting)

I traveled with a cat who surrendered himself to me and fallowed me faithfully into the National forests of America. he bied 2 years ago but today I brought my new cat up here to train, he loved it. Raise your children well cuz even a cat can be a dog if you listen and they will it.

I now leave on a new Quest, for knowledge, and world Peace ☺
